Wasilla

Wasilla - the town and surrounding area

While the Wasilla railstop itself does not have Alaska Railroad staff or services, Wasilla may be well known as the headquarters of the Iditarod Trail Sled Dog Race; there's a log cabin museum featuring historical displays, video exhibits, photos of past champions and race paraphernalia. More information on dog mushing and racing can be enjoyed at the Knik Museum & Sled Dog Mother's Hall of Fame, while a number of Iditarod racers live north of Wasilla and during the summer offer tours of their kennels, mushing demonstrations and even rides in a sled.

Amenities

The stop does not include a railroad depot, nor associated railroad staff or passenger services.

Passengers who are boarding at Wasilla should park their vehicles in the designated gravel area at least 10 feet from the tracks as the parking area. The stop is not sheltered from the elements, so please dress for the weather.

When the train arrives, be prepared to show your ID to the conductor or the onboard supervisor, and they will give you a boarding pass that includes your seat assignment.

While stopped, the train blocks vehicle traffic at this location, so passengers are asked to be ready to board as quickly as possible.

Whittier

Whittier - the town and surrounding area

Located at the head of the Passage Canal, Whittier serves as the gateway to Prince William Sound - home to spectacular glaciers and abundant marine wildlife. Established during World War II as a military supply port, today Whittier's economy is comprised mainly of shipping and port-related jobs, fishing and tourism. While there may be less than 500 year-round residents, this tiny town plays host to a number of large cruise ships each summer.

Portage

Portage - the town and surrounding area

Portage may be a ghost town in the winter as a result of the 1964 Good Friday earthquake, but during the summer it is a bustling destination for travelers coming to witness Portage Glacier calving into blue waters full of floating ice and resident sea mammals.

Tourists have a few options for glacier viewing. For those who want to get up close to the vertical face of the glacier by water, boat tours are available. For hikers, there are easy nature trails that reveal stunning views of the glacier, the iceberg dotted lake and surrounding valley. Ranger guided hiking tours are also available, leaving from the Begich, Boggs Visitor Center.

Girdwood

Girdwood - the town and surrounding area

Girdwood is "One of the 10 Most Beautiful Towns in Alaska" and located just 25 miles south of Anchorage. We are a very active community offering hiking, skiing, rafting, fishing, hiking, gold panning and sightseeing in a beautiful, northern rainforest setting. Glacier Valley is home to Alaska's only major ski resort, Alyeska Resort. Girdwood is an excellent base camp for all your activities in Southcentral Alaska. We are less than 10 miles from Prince William Sound and only 60 miles from the world-famous Kenai River.

Healy

Healy - the town and surrounding area

While the Healy railroad itself does not have Alaska Railroad services, nor is it a big tourist destination, the Healy railroad connects to small communities served by the Alaska Railroad Aurora Winter train. Ground transportation in Healy is limited; make arrangements ahead of time.

Healy is a mining town, although not of gold, but rather coal. Rich coal seams were discovered in the area in the early 1900s. The solitary entrance to Denali National Park is just over 10 miles from Healy, making the town a year-round base for excursions into the park. From here you can connect with Denali Park bus tours, Alaska Range sightseeing trips, and guided hikes.

Hurricane-area Flagstops

Hurricane-area Flagstops

This unique train is one of the last in the nation to provide Flagstop service. Between Hurricane and Talkeetna, locals connect with their hometowns through the wilds of the Indian River Valley along the train route, by way of flagstops, getting on and off the train anywhere.

This backcountry route offers no amenities or resources, so before you get plan transportation and accommodations, and book ahead with our excursions along the route.

 May 8 – Sept 20, 2021

How to get to Denali National Park?

The Alaska Railroad's flagship train.

Every summer morning, the northbound Denali Star Train departs Anchorage for the 356-mile, 12-hour journey to Fairbanks, with stops in Wasilla, Talkeetna and Denali National Park; while in Fairbanks, the southbound Denali Star embarks on the reverse. The route spans two of Alaska's five geographic regions – Southcentral and Interior Alaska. On a clear day, passengers enjoy sights of the train's namesake peak: Denali, the tallest mountain in North America.

Traveling between Anchorage and Talkeetna, the train crosses the Knik River with the Chugach Mountains as a backdrop. Just south of Talkeetna, watch for views of Denali rising high above the Susitna River. North of Talkeetna, the tracks veer away from the road system and into the backcountry Hurricane area; this region offers views of the snaking Indian River, the occasional remote cabin and the expansive sight of Hurricane Gulch from the top of a 296-foot bridge. Just south of Denali National Park, Broad Pass offers majestic views of the Alaska Range in all directions; north of the park, the train winds along Healy Canyon, following the curves of the Nenana River below.

The daily schedule and popular destinations makes the Denali Star ideal for traveling Alaska. Ride the train from Fairbanks or Anchorage to Denali National Park for a quintessential Alaska journey. Anchorage-based passengers may pair the Star with day trips to Talkeetna, while passengers originating in Fairbanks can enjoy a midday excursion in Denali National Park and still be home that evening. Or, plan a multi-day itinerary with overnights along the way; Alaska Railroad reservationists are happy to help plan for accommodations and activities.
